This must-see, diverse property surrounded by management-minded neighbors offers everything from burned and managed pine plantation to mixed timber to open pasture for raising cattle. The existing 1-5 acre +/- ponds have bass and bream, with additional potential pond sites. A water-control structure facilitates duck hunting. Productive sawtooth oak, pear, and apple orchards are in almost every food plot. There are also wild persimmon, pecan, and walnut trees. Prescribed burns over the past couple years and existing fire lanes help with timber and wildlife management. The extensive internal road system makes all parts of the property easily accessible.
